BEST PRACTICES TPRM FOR FINANCIAL SERVICES

A BENCHMARKING DISCUSSION: THIRD-PARTY RISK: ARE YOU READY FOR THE NEXT SUPPLY CHAIN BREACH?

Join fellow CISOs and cybersecurity practitioners for an engaging and thought-provoking discussion hosted in the heart of London's Mayfair. Compare tactics and strategies on the critical area of Third Party Risk Management (TPRM).

Supply chain attacks can be untargeted or targeted, with different motivations. Developing security tools for supply chains is challenging due to complexity and the need for more visibility. Real-world examples like Target and SolarWinds illustrate the consequences of supply chain breaches. Neglecting third-party risk management can lead to reputational and operational impacts and collaboration with suppliers is essential for a unified defence against cyber threats.

Join fellow CISOs in a private fine-dining setting in central London to discuss:

- How are we approaching cybersecurity and information management in the supply chain?
- How can CISOs future-proof their supply chain security strategies and mitigate third-party risks?

Hosted by Pulse Conferences and kindly sponsored by Risk Ledger, this Chatham House Rule discussion is open to CISOs, CSOs, and senior security leaders from mid-to-large enterprises.

Secure your seat today around the table at Corrigan's Mayfair for an unforgettable private dining experience and to be part of this dynamic conversation! Named after Richard Corrigan's first Michelin-star restaurant, The Lindsay Room features a grand table and epitomises luxurious Mayfair.

Yours sincerely,
Team Pulse

ABOUT OUR SPONSOR

Risk Ledger helps organisations get their cybersecurity risk assessment tasks done in hours, not days and scale their supplier coverage from 5% to 95% so they can spot more vulnerabilities at just 10% of the cost. The NHS used Risk Ledger to identify a situation where several third-party suppliers were all dependent on the same fourth-party supplier. They then worked with those third parties to first understand that risk, and then take action to mitigate it. With help from insights like this, many of our customers have improved their supplier contracts. Risk Ledger is in this year's techUK and Tussell 4th Annual Tech200 – an annual list celebrating the 200 fastest-growing technology suppliers in the UK public sector. We are thrilled to share that not only have we secured a spot among these elite companies, but we have also been ranked 100 out of 200 overall and stand as the 10th highest ranked Cybersecurity Company.

ABOUT THE CO-STEERS

Haydn Brooks, Co-Founder & CEO Risk Ledger

This led Haydn to co-found Risk Ledger, the technology platform that combines a security governance platform with a secure social network. Haydn's team is innovating and pushing mutual supply chain assurance and security governance into the twenty second century. 2022 Financial Times Tech Champion.
